Business is a “Relate and Create” Game; NOT a JOB of completing tasks

Business in the Connected Age is about YOU and your team fulfilling your purpose, expressing your Super Powers, being creative and adding value to people that you know and care about in your community. (Relate and Create) You do this in exchange for financial rewards as well as personal fulfillment. The good news is that this makes for an amazing life for everyone involved. The challenge is that this is harder than it looks. Since it is personal, there are a lot of opportunities for doubt and FEAR to come up.

How we Relate (a few examples)...

Talk with someone; Express, Care about someone, Ask questions, Be curious, Respond, React (sometimes), Send a message (text, email etc.), Read and respond to a message; Ask for something, Offer something, Connect for a shared purpose, Invite to an event or experience; Support in some way, Challenge in some way, Provide feedback

How we Create and Co-create (a few examples)...

Do something with someone or for someone to create an experience; Make something to share; Make something people can use or enjoy; Improve something; Write/record something to share; Share thoughts, ideas, images, knowledge and experiences

Where does the FEAR come from?

The Industrial Age presented a business paradigm where major corporations played an impersonal numbers game with faceless workers doing task oriented jobs to make products and provide services for faceless consumers to purchase.

Business in the Industrial Age was impersonal; I would even say: dehumanizing.

This is what we were all taught to do in school. The teacher (Boss) shows you how to complete a task the right way and then gives you a test to sit there by yourself and show that you can do it right without making mistakes. Don't get creative! Just follow the instructions. It's not about YOU, it's about doing it right. We were taught to FEAR mistakes and our own unique abilities... A LOT. We were trained to be good workers.

This is the framework for productivity that we all learned in school; which is useful if you are working in a cubicle or factory completing routine tasks over and over again. BUT it is absolutely USELESS – actually it is destructive- for the purpose-based relating and creating we do while playing the business game in the Connected Age.

The REAL problem is that most of us are attempting to relate and create while trying to do it right and not make any mistakes... THIS IS THE ULTIMATE UNWINNABLE GAME!

As a consequence of this Industrial Mindset most of the “Relate and Create” activities in your business game bring up feelings of stress and FEAR. This makes it impossible to PLAY the game at a high level. This will deplete your energy which will impact your results, AND perhaps more important, your income level! When your income level dips below your expectations, or worse, your expenses... MORE FEAR. A LOT MORE FEAR!

Business in the Connected Age is playful and personal!

Business in the Connected Age is a VERY different – RE-humanizing - game. AWESOME!

PLAY is when you feel creative, resourceful and expressive. You play to be a positive influence in the lives of other people. Play is when you experience the joy of doing something with a sense of wonder and accomplishment. It is when you feel safe enough to experiment and explore and confident that it will turn out well; even if mistakes and messes are made along the way.

So a BIG step in your life as an entrepreneur is to assess how well you are PLAYING the game vs. how much the Industrial Age impersonal “task mode” is restricting you.

15 Activities of the Connected Age Business Game

So the first step toward a business breakthrough is to “get real” about your current perspectives and actions for each of 15 primary activities of the business game.

For each activity rate yourself on a scale of 1 – 9 on the spectrum of Inner Freedom!
I suggest that you rate yourself using a “high bar” standard.

1 = TASK Mode. You don’t attempt to Play or “relate and create” in this area.

3 = Mostly task mode. Most attempts to relate and create are Blocked by FEAR

5 = Neutral -> A mix of task mode and play. Sometimes you relate and create results but often you experience doubt and fear when you attempt to play.

7 = Some task mode with good experiences of freedom to relate and create; few doubts and FEARS.

9 = Total FREEDOM to PLAY relate and create -> you LOVE what you are doing, you are confident, clear, in action and co-creating results with others.

After assessing your numeric rating, write a few key words about your actions and attitudes for each business activity.
